The New York City Anti-Violence Project (AVP) empowers lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, and HIV-affected communities and allies to end all forms of violence through organizing and education, and supports survivors through counseling and advocacy.

Established in 1980, AVP provides free, confidential support to LGBTQ and HIV-affected people who have experienced violence, and is the largest organization of its kind in the United States. We provide drop-in counseling; support groups and clinics; advocacy with police, courts, and social service agencies; and a 24-hour bilingual (English/Spanish) hotline. We track incidents of violence, using this information to educate all communities about violence affecting LGBTQ and HIV-affected people. We train law enforcement, health care professionals, and social service agencies to improve responses and expand resources to LGBTQ and HIV-affected survivors of violence.

AVP’s vision is a world in which all lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, and HIV-affected people are safe, respected, and live free from violence.
